Dear Shareholders,

First of all, on behalf of the Board of Directors of Wenzhou Kangning Hospital Co., Ltd., I am pleased to present the annual report of the Group for the year ended December 31, 2024.

In 2024, the world experienced a convergence of macroeconomic uncertainty and profound reforms in China's healthcare industry, subjecting us to unprecedented challenges. Amid a backdrop of tightening regulatory policies, deepening medical insurance payment reforms, rapid expansion of the public healthcare system, and ongoing volatility in the capital market, the Group remained steadfast in our belief in long-term value. Guided by our core values of "Respecting Life and Serving Humbly," we focused on the true essence of healthcare, deepened our expertise in the psychiatric health field, accelerated our expansion into elderly care services, and promoted the steady development of our owned hospitals through multidimensional initiatives, such as resource integration, asset allocation optimisation, operational efficiency improvement, service model innovation, and digital transformation.

Psychiatric Specialized Medical Service Industry

Mental health and psychiatric well-being, as major public health concerns and critical issues affecting people's livelihood, have become indispensable focus areas in the comprehensive advancement of the Healthy China strategy. At present, China is undergoing a period of accelerated social transformation marked by rapid socio-economic development and a faster pace of life. As a result, mental health problems have become increasingly prominent. Common psychiatric disorders such as anxiety and depression, along with psychological and behavioral issues, have shown a continuous upward trend year by year. Psychological stress events occur frequently, and incidents involving individuals with mental disorders remain a recurring concern. Meanwhile, China continues to face a shortage of qualified mental health professionals and a limited number of specialised medical institutions with uneven distribution, all of which hinder the ability to meet the growing demand for psychiatric healthcare services.

From a policy perspective, the state has placed increasing emphasis on mental health and introduced a series of policy initiatives to promote the development of the sector.

On October 25, 2016, the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party and the State Council issued the "Healthy China 2030 Planning Outline", which proposes to strengthen the construction and standardized management of mental health service system, increase the publicity of mental health awareness, improve mental health literacy, strengthen the intervention in common mental disorders such as depression and anxiety and psychological and behavioral problems, and improve early detection and timely intervention of psychological problems in key groups. It also proposes to enhance the report, registration and rescue management of patients with severe mental disorders, fully promote community rehabilitation services for mental disorders, and improve the intervention ability and level of treating psychological problems caused by emergencies. By 2030, the level of intervention in the prevention and treatment of common mental disorders as well as the detection of psychological and behavioral problems is expected to be significantly improved.

On December 18, 2019, 12 departments including the National Health Commission and Publicity Department issued the

In 2024, China's medical industry underwent structural adjustments amid multiple challenges. In the past year, amid the slowdown in global economic growth and the complicated and volatile external environment, coupled with the continued advancement of the reforms in medical insurance payment methods by the National Healthcare Security Administration, higher expectations and requirements have been placed on the medical industry. In the short to medium term, under the influence of multiple factors such as intensified peer competition, expansion of public hospitals and tightened medical insurance payment policies, the industry ecology of private hospitals was undergoing systematic restructuring. During the Reporting Period, with the strategic objective of "improving quality and efficiency, and seeking progress while maintaining stability (提質增效、穩中求進)", the Group focused on group-based resource integration, deeply explored

D I A

During the Reporting Period, established owned hospitals such as Wenzhou Kangning Hospital, Qingtian Kangning Hospital and Yongjia Kangning Hospital developed steadily. The results of two hospitals, namely Changchun Kanglin Psychological Hospital and Huainan Kangning Hospital grew rapidly year-on-year, making them the growth drivers for the Group's owned hospitals outside of Zhejiang Province. On the other hand, primarily due to the medical insurance settlement differences, structural adjustment to service models and market competition, the performance of some owned hospitals in the Taizhou and Haixi regions declined year-on-year. In addition, Shenzhen Yining Hospital and Chengdu Yining Hospital, which had been making losses, managed to reduce losses through active business structure optimization and operating cost reduction, leading to gradual improvement in operational conditions. However, Beijing Yining Hospital and Jinyun Shuning Hospital, primarily due to an unstable management team and high operational costs, have significantly underperformed expectations. The Group has redeveloped the operation plans for both hospitals in an effort to turn the situation around.

Our responsibilities under those standards are further described in the Auditor’s Responsibilities for the Audit of the Financial Statements section of this auditors’ report. We are independent of Kangning Hospital in accordance with the Code of Ethics for Professional Accountants of the Chinese Institute of Certified Public Accountants (“CICPA Code”), and we have fulfilled our other ethical responsibilities in accordance with the CICPA Code. III. Key Audit Matters

Key audit matters are those matters that, in our professional judgement, were of most significance in our audit of the financial statements of the current period. These matters were addressed in the context of our audit of the financial statements as a whole, and in forming our opinion thereon, and we do not provide a separate opinion on these matters.

We identified the following key audit matters in our audit:

(I) Income Recognition Related to Impoverished Patients

Please refer to Note 3.24 Income and Note 5.41 Operating income and operating costs of the Financial Statements.

Kangning Hospital may not be able to fully receive the medical expenses that impoverished patients are responsible for. In order to improve income recognition related to poverty-stricken patients' medical treatment, Kangning Hospital formulated the Detailed Rules on the Accounting for Income related to Poverty-Stricken Patients. According to the rules, it set up an estimation model of the variable consideration in income recognition related to the treatment for impoverished patients. As the estimation of variable consideration in income recognition related to impoverished patients' medical treatment involves significant judgements made by management, we have identified it as a key audit matter.

The audit procedures we had undertaken include:

1. Obtaining the method of variable consideration estimation related to incomes recognition of impoverished patients;
2. Obtaining the historical data of impoverished patients' medical treatment amounts and various types of payments received for each year and quarter, which are required for the application of the variable consideration estimation method;
3. Recalculating the incomes relating to impoverished patients based on the historical data and estimation methods provided by Kangning Hospital, and comparing it with the relevant figures of the Company, specifically focusing on the adjustments of income related to impoverished patients from the prior year;
4. Analyzing the income adjustments made by the Company in previous period regarding impoverished patients based on the comparison results;
5. Conducting sample checks on impoverished patients, and analyzing the hospital's control over income recognition related to this group of patients.

() G
Refer to Note 3.18 Impairment of long-term assets, Note 3.31 Changes in significant accounting policies and accounting estimates, and Note 5.16 Goodwill in the financial statements.	The audit procedures we had undertaken include:
According to corporate accounting standards, management is required to conduct an impairment test on goodwill annually. Management considers each acquired medical entity as an independent asset group, thus allocating the goodwill formed through business combinations to the corresponding medical entities for impairment test. As of 31 December 2024, the original value of the goodwill formed through business combination was RMB144,445,442.66, with an impairment provision of RMB30,287,008.74 already accounted for.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Understanding the key internal controls and evaluation processes related to goodwill impairment with management, and assessing the inherent risk of material misstatement by considering the degree of estimation uncertainty and the level of other inherent risk factors (such as the complexity of the estimate, subjectivity, and the sensitivity of misreporting caused by management's bias or fraud in making accounting estimates). 2. Based on an understanding of Kangning Hospital's accounting policies and business, evaluating the basis and rationality of management's allocation of goodwill to the combination of asset group.
Management uses the income approach to assess the recoverable amount of the asset group where goodwill is located, and on this basis, determines the book value of goodwill. Since the results of the goodwill impairment test largely depend on significant judgements and estimates involved in the management's forecast of the future cash flow present value of the relevant asset group, mainly including: the average number of operational inpatient beds, average daily charge per inpatient bed, gross margin, pre-tax discount rate, and perpetual growth rate. Such significant judgements and estimates are influenced by management's assessment of future markets and economic environments. Using different estimates and assumptions could significantly impact the recoverable amount of goodwill, therefore, we consider this matter as a key audit matter.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 3. By referring to the historical operating performance of the asset groups related to goodwill, analyzing the key assumptions and methods used by the management in conducting the goodwill impairment test, and judging the reasonableness of management's estimates and assumptions on the fair value measurement of the asset groups to which goodwill belongs. 4. Reviewing the goodwill impairment test report prepared by management, comparing the difference between the book value of the asset group to which the goodwill belongs and the recoverable amount, to confirm whether there is a goodwill impairment.

5. Testing the reasonableness of the key assumptions used by the management in conducting the goodwill impairment test (including the average number of inpatient beds in operation, the average daily charge per inpatient bed, and the gross margin). Specifically, we assessed the reasonableness of the key assumptions by comparing them with historical data from other similar medical entities within the group and referring to the medical insurance payment levels in the regions where these medical entities are located.
6. Check the completeness of the disclosures in the related financial statements notes.

IV. Other information

Business combination not under common control: The combination cost refers to the fair value of the assets paid, liabilities incurred or assumed and equity securities issued by the acquirer on the acquisition date for the purpose of acquiring the control over the acquiree. The Company recognises the difference of the combination costs in excess of the fair value of the identifiable net assets acquired from the acquiree as goodwill. The Company includes the difference of the combination costs in short of the fair value of the identifiable net assets acquired from the acquiree in the current profit or loss. The identifiable assets, liabilities and contingent liabilities of the acquiree that are obtained by the acquirer from combination and conform to the recognition criteria shall be measured at the fair value on the acquisition date.

Direct relevant expenses arising from the business combination are included in the current profit or loss upon occurrence. Trading expenses on issuing equity securities or debt securities for the business combination are included in the initially recognised amount of the equity securities or the debt securities.

3.6.1 Judgement criteria for control

The scope of consolidation for the consolidated financial statements is determined based on control. The Company and all its subsidiaries are included in the scope of consolidation. Control means the power owned over the investee by the Company which enjoys the variable return through participating in activities related to the investee, and has the ability to affect the return by using the power over the investee.

3.6.2 Procedures for consolidation

The Company treats the enterprise group as a whole accounting entity, and prepare the consolidated financial statements with uniform accounting policies, to reflect the overall financial position, operating results and cash flows of the enterprise group. Impacts of the internal transaction between the Company and its subsidiary or among subsidiaries of the Company should be offset. If any internal transaction indicates that relevant assets have been impaired, the impairment loss should be recognised in full. If the accounting policies or accounting periods of a subsidiary are different from those of the Company, the consolidated financial statements of the subsidiary, upon preparation, will be adjusted according to the accounting policies and accounting periods of the Company.

3 Significant accounting policies and accounting estimates (continued)

3.6.2 Procedures for consolidation (continued)

The share of owners' equity, current net profit or loss and current comprehensive income of subsidiaries attributable to minority owners are respectively and separately presented under the owner's equity in the consolidated balance sheet, the net profit in the consolidated income statement, and the total comprehensive income in the consolidated income statement. If the current losses shared by a minority shareholder of a subsidiary exceed the balances arising from the shares enjoyed by the minority shareholder in the owners' equity of the subsidiary at the beginning of the period, minority equity will be offset accordingly.

(1) Increase of subsidiaries or business

During the reporting period, if the Company acquired subsidiary or business from the business combination under common control, the operating results and cash flows of the subsidiary or business combination from the beginning of the current period to the end of the reporting period are included in the consolidated financial statements. At the same time, the beginning amounts of the consolidated financial statements and relevant items of the comparative statement are adjusted, and it is deemed that, after the combination, the reporting entity has been in existence since the point when the ultimate controlling party began to control.

During the reporting period, the Company has acquired the subsidiaries or business from the business combination not under common control, they are included in the consolidated financial statements based on the fair values of various identifiable assets, liabilities and contingent liabilities recognised on the acquisition date.

- ii. These transactions as a whole can reach a complete business result;
- iii. The occurrence of a transaction depends on that of at least one other transactions;
- iv. A single transaction is uneconomical but it is economical when considered together with other transactions.

When these transactions belong to a package of transactions, they are accounted for as a transaction of disposing subsidiary and losing control; however, the difference between each disposal cost and net asset share in the subsidiaries corresponding to each disposal of investments before loss of the control is recognised as other comprehensive income in the consolidated financial statements, and is transferred into current profit or loss upon loss of control.

Where multiple transactions do not belong to a package deal, before the loss of control, accounting treatment should be made via the partial disposal of equity investments in the subsidiary without losing control; at the loss of control, accounting treatment will be made by the general treatment method for the disposal of subsidiaries.

The stock premium in the capital reserves under the consolidated balance sheet will be adjusted at the difference between the long-term equity investment acquired by the Company for the purchase of minority interest and the share of net assets calculated constantly from the acquisition date (or combination date) according to the newly increased shareholding ratio. Where the stock premium is insufficient to offset, retained earnings will be adjusted.

(4) Partial disposal of equity investments in subsidiaries without losing control

The capital premium of capital reserves in the consolidated balance sheet will be adjusted based on difference between the disposal price and the share which should be enjoyed for the disposal of long-term equity investments in the net assets the subsidiary continuously calculates from the acquisition date or the combination date; if the capital premium is insufficient to offset, retained earnings will be adjusted.

3.10.1 Classification of financial instruments

According to the business model of financial assets and contractual cash flow characteristics of the same, which are subject to the management of the Group, financial assets are classified at the initial recognition as: financial assets measured at the amortised cost, financial assets measured at fair value through the other comprehensive income and financial assets measured at fair value through the current profit or loss.

The Company classifies the financial assets that meet the following conditions at the same time but have not been designated to be measured at fair value through profit or loss as the financial assets measured at amortised cost:

- The business model is adopted for the purpose of obtaining the contractual cash flow;
- The contract cash flow is only the payment for the principal and the interest based on the outstanding principal amount.

Financial assets that meet both the following conditions and have not been designated as financial assets measured at fair value through current profit or loss will be classified as financial assets (debt instruments) measured at fair value through other comprehensive income:

- The purpose of the business model is to collect contractual cash flows and sell such financial assets;
- The contract cash flow is only the payment for the principal and the interest based on the outstanding principal amount.

At the initial recognition, the Company may irrevocably designate the non-trading equity instrument investments as financial assets (equity instruments) measured at fair value through other comprehensive income. The designation is made based on a single investment and the relevant investment is in line with the definition of the equity instrument from the issuer's perspective.

Except for the financial assets measured at amortised cost and the financial assets measured at fair value through other comprehensive income, the Company classifies other financial assets as financial assets measured at fair value through the current profit or loss. At the initial recognition, in order to eliminate or significantly reduce accounting mismatches, the Company may irrevocably designate the financial assets that should have been classified as the financial assets measured at amortised cost or those measured at fair value through other comprehensive income as the financial assets measured at fair value through the current profit or loss.

3.10.6 Testing method and accounting treatment of depreciation of financial instruments

The Company performs accounting treatment of impairment for financial assets measured at amortised cost, financial assets (debt instruments) measured at fair value through other comprehensive income and financial guarantee contracts based on the expected credit loss.

By considering such reasonable and well-founded information as relevant matters in the past, current conditions and prediction of future economic conditions, the Company calculates the probability weighted amount, weighted by default risk, of the present value of the difference between the cash flows receivable under the contract and the cash flows expected to be received, to determine the expected credit loss.

For receivables and contract assets arising from the transactions specified in the Accounting Standards for Business Enterprises No. 14 – Income, whether or not they contain significant financing components, the Company always makes the provision for credit loss at the amount equivalent to the expected credit loss over the whole duration.

For lease receivables from transactions regulated by the Accounting Standards for Business Enterprises No. 21 – Lease, the Company always makes the provision for loss at the amount equivalent to the lifetime expected credit loss.

For other financial instruments, the Company assesses the change in the credit risk of the relevant financial instruments since initial recognition on each balance sheet date.

By comparing the default risk in financial instruments on the balance sheet date with the default risk in financial instruments on the initial recognition date, the Company determines the relative change in default risk in financial instruments during the estimated duration to assess whether the credit risk of financial instruments has greatly increased following the initial recognition of such financial instruments. Generally, the Company believes that the credit risk of the financial instruments has not increased significantly. Therefore, the Company does not recognize expected credit loss for these financial instruments.

If there is obvious increase in credit risk following the initial recognition of such financial instrument, the Company will measure the loss provision at the amount which is equivalent to the amount of the expected credit loss over the entire duration of such financial instrument; if there is no obvious increase in credit risk following the initial recognition of such financial instrument, the Company will measure the loss provision at the amount which is equivalent to the amount of the expected credit loss within 12 months in the future of such financial instrument. Amount increased or reversed of provision for loss arising therefrom will be included in the current profit or loss as impairment loss or gain. For financial assets measured at fair value through other comprehensive income (debt instruments), the Company recognises its loss reverses in other comprehensive income, and includes the impairment losses or gains into the current profit or loss, without deduction of book value of such financial assets listed in the balance sheet.

If the Company no longer reasonably expects that the contractual cash flow of the financial assets can be fully or partially recovered, the book balance of the financial assets will be directly written down.

Except for the accounts receivable with provision for bad debt made on an individual basis, the Company divides other financial instruments into several portfolios according to the credit risk characteristics, and determines the expected credit loss on the portfolio basis. The Company's portfolio type and determination basis of the provision for expected credit losses on notes receivable, accounts receivable and other receivables are as follows:

3.11.1 Classification and cost of inventories

Inventories are classified into: turnover materials, stock commodities, goods in transit.

Inventories are initially measured at cost, and the inventory cost includes the procurement cost, processing cost and other expenses arising from making the inventory at their present location and condition.

3.11.2 Measurement method of dispatched inventories

Inventories are measured with the first-in first-out method when dispatched.

3.11.3 Inventory system

Perpetual inventory system is adopted.

3.11.4 Amortisation method for low-cost consumables

Low-cost consumables are amortised at lump-sum method.

3.11.5 Determination criteria and provision method for inventory write-downs

On the balance sheet date, inventories should be measured at the cost or the net realizable value, whichever is lower. Where the inventory cost is higher than its net realizable values, the inventory write-downs should be made. The net realizable values of inventories refer to the amounts of the estimated selling prices of inventories minus the estimated costs to completion, estimated selling expenses and relevant taxes and surcharges.

Net realizable values of merchandise inventories held directly for sale, such as finished goods, stock commodities and available-for-sale materials, are measured at the estimated selling prices less estimated sales expenses and relevant taxes and surcharges in the normal production process. Net realizable values of material inventories which need further processing are measured at the estimated selling prices less the estimated costs of completion, estimated sales expenses and relevant taxes and surcharges in the normal production process. Net realizable values of inventories held for the purpose of fulfillment of sales contracts or service contracts are calculated on the basis of the contract prices; if the quantity of inventories held exceeds that stated in the contract, the net realizable values of the excessive part are calculated on the basis of normal selling prices.

When the inventory write-downs are made, where the previous factor rendering the write-down of the inventory value has been eliminated, for which the net realizable value of the inventory is higher than the book value of the same, the inventory write-downs shall be reversed from the amount of inventory write-downs originally made, and the reversed amount shall be included in the current profit or loss.

3.13.3 Subsequent measurements and recognition of profit or loss

- (1) Long-term equity investments accounted for under the cost method

Long-term equity investments of the Company in its subsidiaries are accounted for under the cost method unless such investments meet the conditions of holding for sale. As to other changes in owners' equity of the investee other than net profit or loss, other comprehensive income and profit distribution (hereinafter referred to as "Other Changes in Owners' Equity"), the Company shall adjust the book value of the long-term equity investment and include such change in the owners' equity.

When recognizing the share of the investee's net profit or loss, other comprehensive income and other changes in owners' equity that the Company shall enjoy, based on fair value of various identifiable assets and others of the investee on acquisition and according to accounting policies and accounting periods of the Company, the Company shall recognise such share after making adjustments to the investee's net profit and other comprehensive income.

The Company calculates its attributable but not realised profit or loss from internal transactions between the Company and its associates or joint ventures based on its attributable percentage and offset such profit or loss, and recognises the investment income on that basis; however, businesses formed by assets invested or sold are excluded. Where the losses from internal transactions that are not realised between the Company and the investee fall into the scope of losses from asset impairment, the full amount of such losses shall be recognised.

Investment properties are the properties to earn rentals or for capital appreciation or both. Examples include leased land use right, land use right held for transfer upon appreciation, and leased building, (including buildings that have been constructed or developed for future lease out under operating leases, and buildings that are being constructed or developed for future lease out under operating leases).

Subsequent expenses related to investment properties, if the economic benefits associated with such assets are likely to flow in the Company and its cost can be measured reliably, should be recorded in the cost of investment property; otherwise, they should be recorded into the current profit or loss when occur.

The Company measures its existing investment properties by using the cost model. 3.14.1 Recognition and initial measurement of fixed assets

Fixed assets refer to the tangible assets held for the purpose of producing commodities, providing services, renting or business management with useful lives exceeding one accounting year. Fixed assets are recognised when they simultaneously meet the following conditions:

- (1) It is probable that the economic benefits relating to the fixed assets will flow into the Company;
- (2) The costs of the fixed assets can be measured reliably.

Fixed assets shall be initially measured at cost with the consideration of the expected discard expenses.

The subsequent expense relating to fixed assets are included in the costs of fixed assets when relevant economic benefits are likely to flow in the Company and their costs can be measured reliably; as for the party replaced, the book value thereof is derecognised; all other subsequent expenses are included in the current profit or loss when they occur.

3.14.2 Depreciation method

The provision for depreciation of fixed assets is made by category and by using the straight-line method and the depreciation rates are determined according to the categories, estimated useful lives and estimated net residual rates of fixed assets. For fixed assets where the provision for impairment has been made, the depreciation amount in the future will be determined at the book value of the fixed assets where the provision for impairment has been deducted, based on the remaining useful life. Where the fixed assets have the components with different useful lives or bring economic benefits for the enterprise in different ways, then the Company should choose different depreciation rates or methods to separately make the provision for depreciation.

As for special borrowings borrowed for acquiring and constructing or producing assets eligible for capitalisation, borrowing costs of special borrowings actually incurred in the current period less the interest income from undrawn borrowings deposited in the bank or investment income from temporary investment should be recognised as the capitalisation amount of borrowing costs.

As for general borrowings used for acquiring and constructing or producing assets eligible for capitalisation, the amount of general borrowings to be capitalised should be calculated by multiplying the weighted average of asset disbursements of the part of accumulated asset disbursements exceeding special borrowings by the capitalisation rate of used general borrowings. The capitalisation rate is calculated by weighted average interest rate of general borrowings.

During the period for capitalisation, the balance of exchange from the principal and interest of the special borrowings in foreign currency should be capitalised, and included in the cost of assets eligible for capitalisation. The Company will conduct the impairment test if the evidence shows that the long-term assets, such as the long-term equity investment, investment properties measured with the cost model, fixed assets, construction in progress, right-of-use assets, intangible assets with definite useful lives and oil and gas assets, are impaired on the balance sheet date. If the result of the impairment test shows that the recoverable amount of the asset is lower than its book value, the provision for impairment shall be made and included in impairment loss. The recoverable amount of the asset is the higher of the net amount of its fair value less disposal expenses or the present value of its estimated future cash flows. Provision for assets impairment is made on individual asset basis. If it is difficult to estimate the recoverable amount of the individual asset, the Company shall estimate the recoverable amount of the asset group that the individual asset belongs to. The asset portfolio is the minimum asset group that can independently generate the cash inflow.

Goodwill from business combination, intangible assets with indefinite useful lives and intangible assets that have not reached the usable condition should be subject to the impairment test at least once at the end of each year, no matter whether they have any impairment indication.

The Company has conducted an impairment test of goodwill. The book value of goodwill arising from business combination is amortised to related asset groups by the reasonable method as of the purchase date; if it is difficult do so, such value will be amortised to the relevant combination of asset groups. Relevant asset group or combination of asset groups refers to the asset group or combination of asset groups which is able to benefit from the synergistic effect of business combination.

At the time of making an impairment test on the relevant asset groups or portfolios of asset groups containing goodwill, if any indication shows that the goodwill-related asset group or combination of asset groups may have been impaired, the Company will firstly conduct an impairment test on the asset groups or portfolios of asset groups not containing goodwill, calculate the recoverable amount and compare it with the relevant book value, to recognise the corresponding impairment loss. Then, the Company shall test the impairment of the asset group or combination of asset groups with goodwill, and compare the book value thereof with said recoverable amount; if the said recoverable amount is lower than the book value thereof, the amount of impairment losses should be firstly used to deduct book value of goodwill allocated to the asset group or the combination of asset group, and then deduct book value of other assets according to the proportion of the book value of other assets other than the goodwill in the asset group or the combination of asset group.

The losses from impairment of the above assets cannot be reversed in subsequent accounting periods once recognised.

During the accounting period when employees serve the Company, the paid amount which is calculated based on the payment base and proportion as stipulated in the provisions of the local place is recognised as liabilities and included in current profit or loss or related assets cost. In addition, the Company also participates in the enterprise annuity plans/supplementary pension funds approved by the relevant state authorities. The Company makes payments to the annuity plan/local social insurance institutions in a certain proportion to the total employee wage, with corresponding expenses included in the current profit or loss or related asset costs.

(2) Defined benefit plan

The Company attributes the benefit obligation under the defined benefit plan to the period during which employees provide service to the Company, based on the formula determined based on the estimated accumulated benefit unit method, and charges the same to the current profit or loss or relevant asset costs.

The deficit or surplus arising from the balance of the present value of the obligations of the defined benefit plans net of the fair value of assets thereof is recognised as a net liability or net asset of the defined benefit plan. For a surplus of defined benefit plan, the Company should measure the net asset of such defined benefit plan at the lower of the surplus of such defined benefit plan and the asset thereof.

The obligations under the defined benefit plan, including the estimated payment obligation within 12 months following the annual report period during which the employees provide service, are discounted to the present value at the market return of the national debt of which the term and currency match those of the obligation under the defined benefit plan on the balance sheet date, or of the high-quality corporate debt in an active market.

Provisions are initially measured at the best estimate of expenses required for the performance of relevant present obligations.

When determining the best estimates, the Company comprehensively considers the risks, uncertainties, time value of money, and other factors relating to the contingencies. If the time value of money is significant, the best estimates will be determined after discount of relevant future cash outflows.

When all or part of the expenses necessary for the settlement of provisions of the Company are expected to be compensated by a third party, the compensation shall be separately recognised as an asset only when it is virtually certain that the compensation will be received. The amount recognised for the compensation shall not exceed the book value of the provisions.

As for share-based payment transaction that can be exercised immediately after the grant, it should be included in the relevant costs or expenses at the fair value of the equity instrument on the date of grant. The capital reserves should be increased accordingly. As for equity-settled share-based payments, after grant, if the right cannot be exercised until the services within the vesting period come to an end or until the prescribed performance conditions are met, the services obtained in the current period shall be included in the relevant costs or expenses and the capital reserves shall be increased accordingly, based on the best estimate of the equity instruments with exercisable rights on each balance sheet date within the vesting period and according to the fair value on the grant date.

If the Company cancels the equity instruments granted during the waiting period, it shall treat such cancellation as acceleration of the exercisable rights and shall immediately include the amount that should be recognised during the remaining waiting period in the current profit or loss. The capital reserves should be also recognised at the same time. However, if new equity instruments are granted, which are recognised as the replacement of the canceled equity instrument on the grant date, the granted equity instrument for replacement shall be handled in the same way with the disposal of revision of provisions on the original equity instrument and conditions.

3.23.2 Cash-settled share-based payments and equity instruments

The Company includes the share-based payment for which relevant right can be exercised subsequent to the grant of equity instruments in relevant costs or expenses on the grant date at the fair value of the liability it assumes, and increase liabilities accordingly. For the share-based payment for which relevant right can be exercised after the grant of equity instruments only when the services during the waiting period are completed or the specified performance conditions are met, on each balance sheet date within the waiting period, the Company, based on the best estimate on the situation of exercising relevant right, includes the services acquired during that period in relevant costs or expenses and in liabilities according, at the fair value of the liability the Company assumes. 3.24.1 Accounting policies for income recognition and measurement

The Company recognises income when its performance obligations as stipulated in the contract are fulfilled, that is, when the customer obtained control of the related goods or services. Obtaining control of related goods or services refers to being able to dominate the use of the goods or the services and obtain almost all economic benefits from them.

Where the contract contains two or more performance obligations, the Company will allocate the transaction price to each individual performance obligation based on the relative proportion of the individual selling price of the goods or services promised by each individual performance obligation on the contract commencement date. Meanwhile, the Company measures the income according to the transaction price allocated to each individual performance obligation.

The transaction price is the amount of consideration that the Company expects to receive for the transfer of goods or services to customers, excluding amounts collected on behalf of third parties and amounts that are expected to be returned to customers. The Company determines the transaction price in accordance with the terms of the contract and in combination with its past practice, and meanwhile take into account the impact of variable consideration, the existence of significant financing elements in the contract, non-cash consideration and consideration payable to the customer. The Company determines the transaction price that includes variable consideration at an amount that does not exceed the accumulatively recognised income that is highly unlikely to have a major reversal when the relevant uncertainty is eliminated. Where there is a significant financing element in a contract, the Group determines the transaction price based on the assumed amount of cash to be paid when the customer obtains control of the goods or services, and amortises the difference between the transaction price and the contract consideration over the contract period at the effective interest method. If the Company meets one of the following conditions, it shall perform the performance obligation within a certain period; otherwise, it shall perform the performance obligation at a certain time point:

- The customer obtains and consumes the economic benefits brought by the performance of the Company while the company is performing the obligation.
- The customer is able to control the goods under construction in the Company's performance process.

3.24.1 Accounting policies for income recognition and measurement (continued)

For performance obligations performed at a certain time point, the Company recognises income when the customer obtains control of the relevant goods or services. The Company will consider the following signs when judging whether the customer has acquired or services control over the goods, including:

- The Company has a present right to receive payment for the goods or services, i.e. the customer has a present obligation to pay for the goods or services.
- The Company has transferred the legal title of the goods to the customer, which means that the customer has the legal title of the goods.
- The Company has physically transferred the goods to the Customer, which means that the customer has physical possession of the goods.
- The Company has transferred to the customer the principal risks and rewards of ownership of the goods, i.e., the customer has received the principal risks and rewards of ownership of the goods.
- The customer has accepted the goods or services, etc.

The Company determines whether its status is a main principal or agent at the time of engaging in a transaction based on whether it has control over the goods or services prior to transferring them to the customer. If the Company is able to control the goods or services before transferring them to the customer, the Company is the main principal and recognises income based on the total consideration received or receivable; otherwise, the Company is the agent and recognises income based on the amount of commissions or handling fees to which it expects to be entitled.

(1) Income from treatments and healthcare services

Income from treatments and healthcare services consists of treatment income, other healthcare service income and forensic service income. The Company recognises income from the provision of various types of professional medical services to its service recipients when the medical services have been rendered and the price has been paid or an unconditional right to receive payments has been obtained. If the Company has received payments from the service recipients but not yet provided the medical services related to the treatments, such payments are recognised as advances.

(2) Wholesale and retail income of pharmaceutical and equipment

The Company sells pharmaceuticals to the customers on a wholesale or retail basis and recognises income when customers confirm the purchase of the pharmaceuticals.

(3) Income from management services

Income from management services is recognised at the time the services are rendered and in accordance with the progress of the management services rendered when the Company develops a qualified right to receive payments for the cumulative portion of performance to date throughout the period of the contract.

- (1) Where the finance department appropriates the interest subsidies to the lending bank, and the lending bank provides the loan at the policy-based preferential interest rate to the Company, the Company will take the book-entry value at the loan amount actually received, and relevant loan expenses are calculated based on the principal of the loan and the policy-based preferential interest rate.
- (2) Where the finance department directly appropriates the interest subsidies to the Company, the Company will use the corresponding interest subsidies to offset related borrowing costs.

Income tax includes the current income tax and deferred income tax. The Company recognises current income tax and deferred income tax in the current profit or loss, except for the income tax arising from business combinations and transactions or events directly recognised in owners' equity (including other comprehensive income).

The deferred income tax assets and deferred income tax liabilities are calculated and recognised based on the differences (temporary differences) between the tax bases of assets and liabilities and the book values of the same.

Deferred income tax assets are recognised for deductible temporary differences to the extent that it shall not exceed the taxable income probably obtained in future period to be against the deductible temporary difference. For deductible losses and tax credits that can be carried forward to subsequent periods, deferred income tax assets arising therefrom are recognised to the extent that future taxable income will be probable to be available against deductible losses and tax credits.

Taxable temporary differences are recognised as deferred income tax liabilities except in special circumstances.

- Transaction or event that it is not a business combination, and it affects neither accounting profit nor taxable income (or deductible loss) at the time of occurrence, and the initially recognised assets and liabilities do not result in transactions or events that give rise to equal taxable temporary differences and deductible temporary differences.

For the taxable temporary differences related to the investments in subsidiaries, associates and joint ventures, the deferred income tax liabilities should be recognised, unless that the timing of the reversal of the temporary differences is able to be controlled by the Company and the temporary differences will be probable not to be reversed in the foreseeable future. For deductible temporary differences arising from investments in associates and joint ventures, when the temporary difference will reverse in the foreseeable future and taxable profit will be available against which the deductible temporary differences can be used, the deferred income tax asset will be recognised.

On the balance sheet date, the Company measures the deferred income tax assets and deferred income tax liabilities at the tax rate as specified in the tax law and applicable to the period where such assets will be recovered or the liabilities will be discharged.

On the balance sheet date, the Company reviews the book value of deferred income tax assets. If it is unlikely to obtain sufficient taxable income taxes to offset against the benefit of deferred income tax assets, the book value of deferred income tax assets shall be written down. When it is likely to earn sufficient taxable income, the write-down amount shall be reversed.

(2) Lease liabilities

On the commencement date of the lease term, the Company recognises the leases other than short-term leases and leases of low-value assets as lease liabilities. Lease liabilities are initially measured at the present value of the lease payments that have not been paid. Lease payments include:

- Fixed payments (including substantial fixed payments), and if there is any lease incentive, the relevant amount of the lease incentive shall be deducted;
- variable lease payments depending on the index or ratio;
- Payments expected to be payable based on the residual value of the guarantee provided by the Company;
- The exercise price of purchase option, provided that the Hotel reasonably determines that it will exercise the option;
- The amount to be paid to exercise the lease termination option, provided that it is reflected that the Company will exercise the lease termination option during the lease term;

The Company takes the interest rate implicit in lease as the discount rate, or takes the interest rate for incremental borrowings of the Company as the discount rate if the interest rate implicit in lease cannot be determined reasonably.

The Company calculates the interest expenses of lease liabilities in each lease term based on a fixed periodic interest rate, and includes such expenses into the current profit or loss or the related asset costs.

The Company capitalises the incurred initial direct expense relevant to the operating lease, and amortises the same on the same basis for rent income recognition during the lease term to include the same in the current profit or loss. Variable lease payments not included in the lease receipt are recognised in the current profit or loss when they are actually incurred. If an operating lease is changed, the Company accounts for it as a new lease from the effective date of the change, and the amount of lease payments received in advance or receivable in connection with the lease before the change is considered to be the amount of payments for the new lease.

(2) Accounting treatment of finance lease

On the commencement date of the lease term, the Company recognises finance lease receivables for finance leases, and derecognises assets under the finance lease. When the Company makes initial measurement of finance lease receivables, the net lease investment is used as the book-entry value of the finance lease receivables. The net investment in leases is the sum of the unguaranteed residual value and the present value of the lease payments not yet received at the beginning of the lease term discounted at the interest rate embedded in the lease.

The Company calculates and recognises interest income for each period of the lease term based on a fixed periodic interest rate. The derecognition and impairment of finance lease receivables shall be accounted for in accordance with “3.10 Financial instruments” herein.

The variable lease payable that is not included in the net lease investment for measurement shall be included in the current profit or loss at the time of actual occurrence.

- Where any finance lease has changed and meets the following conditions at the same time, the Company should take such lease as an individual lease for accounting treatment;
- The increase in consideration is equivalent to the adjusted individual price of the expanded part of the lease scope according to the contract.

If a change in a finance lease is not accounted for as a separate lease, the Company treats the changed lease separately under the following circumstances:

- If the change takes effect on the commencement of the lease, the lease will be classified as an operating lease, and the Company will treat it as a new lease from the effective date of the lease change, and take the net lease investment before the effective date of the lease change as the book value of the leased assets;

After the commencement date of the lease term, the subsequent measurement of the right-of-use assets and lease liabilities and the lease changes are detailed in “3.27 Lease 1. In its subsequent measurement of a lease liability arising from a sale-leaseback transaction, the lease payments or changed lease payments shall not be determined in a manner that would result in the lessee recognizing a profit or loss related to the right to use the land acquired under the leaseback.

On 25 October 2023, the Ministry of Finance issued the Interpretation No. 17 of Accounting Standards for Business Enterprises (CK [2023] No. 21, hereinafter referred to as the “Interpretation No. 17”).

Division of current liabilities and non-current liabilities

Interpretation 17 clarifies:

- If the enterprise has no substantial right on the balance sheet date to defer the settlement of liabilities for more than one year after the balance sheet date, the liabilities shall be classified as current liabilities.
- For the liabilities arising from enterprise loan arrangements, the right of the enterprise to defer the repayment of liabilities to more than one year after the balance sheet date may depend on whether the enterprise has complied with the conditions specified in the loan arrangements (hereinafter referred to as the contractual conditions). When judging whether the substantial right to defer debt repayment exists, the enterprise shall only consider the contractual conditions to be followed on or before the balance sheet date, and shall not consider the contractual conditions that the enterprise shall follow after the balance sheet date.
- The liquidation of liabilities at the time of dividing the liquidity of liabilities refers to the release of liabilities by the enterprise transferring cash, other economic resources (such as goods or services) or the enterprise’s own equity instruments to the counterparty. If the terms of the liability cause the enterprise to settle by delivering its own equity instruments at the option of the counterparty, if the enterprise classifies the above option as an equity instrument and separately recognises it as an equity component of a compound financial instrument in accordance with the Accounting Standards for Business Enterprises No. 37 – Presentation of Financial Instruments, the terms will not affect the liquidity classification of the liability.

Other description, including the description of changes in 2024 and change reasons:

- (1) The decrease in stock premium in capital reserves was due to the elimination of stock premium in capital reserves of RMB23,578,910.13 as a result of the Company purchased minority interests in certain subsidiaries, and the difference between the equity consideration and the share of net assets of the subsidiaries calculated on the basis of the newly increased percentage of shareholding in the subsidiaries calculated on an ongoing basis from the date of purchase, see Note 7. 2 for details.
- (2) This period, the Company granted treasury TRE from the H Share Award and Trust Scheme to the incentivized subjects, with the difference between the grant price and the cost of the treasury stocks offsetting the capital reserve and stock premium by RMB9,334,383.19.
- (3) According to the Proposal to Authorize the Board of Directors to Repurchase a Portion of H Shares deliberated and approved at the Annual General Meeting for 2023, the First H Share Class Meeting for 2024, and the First Domestic Share Class Meeting for 2024 held by the Company on May 30, 2024, the Company has repurchased and cancelled 1,930,300 H shares. The difference between the repurchase price and the par value of the shares resulted in a reduction of the stock premium in the capital reserve by RMB22,100,731.18.
- (4) In accordance with the Company's H Share Award and Trust Scheme, a share-based compensation cost of RMB3,997,509.78 was recognised for the period and correspondingly recorded in other capital reserves, as detailed in Note 12.
- (5) During this period, the associate Hangzhou Anken Medical Technology Co., Ltd. reduced its investors, and the premium reduction in capital led to an increase in the Company's equity investment share, resulting in a decrease of RMB11,654,848.94 in the capital reserves.

9 Risks related to financial instruments

9.1 Risk management

The Company faces various financial risks in the course of its business operation, including credit risks, liquidity risks and market risks (including the exchange rate risk, interest rate risk and other price risk). The above financial risks and the risk management policies adopted by the Company to reduce these risks are as follows:

The Board of Directors is responsible for planning and establishing the Company's risk management structure, formulating the Company's risk management policies and related guidelines, and supervising the implementation of risk management measures. The Company has formulated risk management policies to identify and analyze the risks faced by the Company. These risk management policies clearly stipulate specific risks, covering many aspects such as market risk, credit risk and liquidity risk management. The Company regularly evaluates the market environment and changes in the Company's business activities to determine whether to update the risk management policies and systems. The Company's risk management is carried out by the Strategy and Risk Management Committee in accordance with the policies approved by the Board of Directors. The Strategy and Risk Management Committee identifies, evaluates and avoids relevant risks through close cooperation with other business departments of the Company. The Company's internal audit department may conduct the regular audit regarding the risk management and control and the procedures therefor, and submit the audit result to the Company's Audit Committee.

The Company diversifies the risk of financial instruments through appropriate diversified investment and business portfolios, and formulates corresponding risk management policies to reduce the risk of concentration in a single industry, specific region or specific counter-parties.

9.1.1 Credit risk

The credit risk refers to the risk where the Company may have the financial loss caused by the counterparties' failure in performing any contractual obligation.

The Company's cash at bank and on hand are mainly cash at bank deposited in state-owned banks with good reputation and high credit rating and other large and medium-sized listed banks. The Company believes that there is no significant credit risk and it will hardly generate significant losses caused by bank default.

The Company's accounts receivables are mainly sales of medicines and provision of medical services to patients, and also management service fees receivables. According to the social security policy of each hospital of the Company, medical fees of patients are usually jointly borne by the patients and social insurance. The Company usually collects part of the advance payment during the patient admission procedures, and the patients are required to settle their responsible part of the fee during the discharge procedures. For those fees unsettled by the patients at the time of discharge, the Company will recover from the patients through regular collections. For the medical fees borne by social insurance, the Company will reimburse the social insurance institution in a timely manner after issuing invoices to patients. The reimbursement is usually recovered within 2-9 months after application, for which the Company believes that there is no major credit risk. Some of the medical fees are also paid by government departments such as the Civil Affairs Bureau and Disabled Persons' Federation where the hospitals are located. The Company adopts different collection monitoring mechanisms for different payers.

9.1.2 Liquidity risk

The liquidity risk refers to the risk of capital shortage of an enterprise taking place in the course of cash payment or settlement via other financial assets.

The policy of the Company is to ensure that there is sufficient cash for the payment of the matured debts. Liquidity risk is under the centralized control of the financial department of the Company. The financial department monitors cash balance and readily realizable and marketable securities and makes rolling forecast on cash flows of the next 12 months to ensure that the Company has sufficient funds to repay debts in all cases of reasonable prediction. At the same time, the Company will continue to monitor whether it complies with the provisions of the loan agreement, and obtains commitments from major financial institutions to provide sufficient reserve funds to meet short-term and long-term funding demands.

10 Disclosure of fair value

The input value used for measuring fair value are divided into three levels:

Level 1 inputs are quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities that the Company can acquire on the measurement date.

Level 2 inputs are inputs other than quoted prices included within Level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly or indirectly.

Level 3 inputs are unobservable inputs that have been applied in valuing the respective asset or liability.

The level of fair value measurement depends on the lowest level of input that is significant to the entire fair value measurement.
